Living Library to celebrate diversity on campus

The University of Lethbridge celebrates International Education Week with the return of its annual Living Library on Thursday.

Unlike a traditional library — where you would borrow a book — the Living Library gives visitors a chance to engage in conversations with members of the University community from different cultural and ethnic backgrounds, gaining firsthand insight into their stories, experiences and traditions.

The event, hosted by the University Library in collaboration with International Student Services, will celebrate diversity on our campus while creating an internationalization at home atmosphere.

WHAT: Interview and photo opportunities with Living Library participants and organizers

WHEN: Thursday, Nov. 19, 11:15 a.m. to 2:00 p.m.

WHERE: Inside the University Library entrance

Participating media can ask for Nanda Stannard, Library Operations Specialist upon their arrival, she is the organizer of this event

Our University's Blackfoot name is Iniskim, meaning Sacred Buffalo Stone. The University is located in traditional Blackfoot Confederacy territory. We honour the Blackfoot people and their traditional ways of knowing in caring for this land, as well as all Indigenous Peoples who have helped shape and continue to strengthen our University community.
