

Interdisciplinary Workshop on Protest and Civil Disobedience

Friday, March 29 2019

AH100 and AH176

10:00 - 3:30 p.m.

Injustice ought to be resisted, this much we can all agree on. But how may (or must?) we resist injustices? And who are the people that do? How are we to think about their actions? We are excited to present you with the opportunity to spend a day reflecting on protest and civil disobedience. We will start the day with a keynote from Dr. Candice Delmas (Northeastern University) on “Civil Disobedience and the Law”. Then, scholars from all corners of the University of Lethbridge will offer you different points of view on this important topic.

SCHEDULE

10:00AM - 11:00AM	AH100: Candice Delmas: “In Defense of Uncivil Disobedience”
----------------------	---

COFFEE BREAK

	AH100	AH176
11:45AM - 12:20 PM	Sahra Nodge: “The Natural Duty to Justice: Indigenous Direct Action and the Duty to Resist.”	Paul McKenzie- Jones: “In Violation of Whose Laws? Indigenous Blockades, Indigenous Land, and Settler Charges of Trespass.”
12:25PM - 1:00 PM	Michelle Snidal: “The Resistance and Gender Transgressions Women in the Medieval and Modern Periods Have Undergone to Express their Rights”	Amy Shaw: “Conscientious Objection in First World War Canada”

COFFEE BREAK

1:30PM – 2:05 PM	Paula Cardozo: “Bad Librarians: Reflections on Complicity and Resistance.”	Monica Lockett: “A Duty to Report: Advocacy and Social Justice Journalism as Political Obligation to Resist and Remedy Injustice.”
2:10PM – 2:45PM	Katharina Stevens: “Justifying Aggression, Hostility, and Emotional Outbreaks: The Defeasibility of the Duty to Argue Cooperatively”	Paul Viminitz: “Pius XII and Complicity.”
2:50PM – 3:25PM	Kent Peacock: “The Responsibility of Intellectuals”

For a detailed schedule, please visit: <https://wordpress.com/post/uofphilosophydepartmentblog.wordpress.com/142>