English is the Study of Language and Literature

Both reading and writing as skills and modes of expression are encompassed in the study of English. Language is the common basis upon which all knowledge and disciplines are conceptualized, organized, and expressed. The more proficient we are at using and understanding language, the better we are able to comprehend our world and succeed in all human and professional undertakings. Literature is a primary means through which our culture transmits and evaluates its deepest values, ideals, and imaginative visions. It is also a means through which we come to understand other cultures and earlier versions of our own culture. Literature seeks to enlighten, to inform, and to stimulate original thinking and imagination.

About the English Major

The Department of English offers students the opportunity to study the properties and powers of language. Courses in Creative Writing help students develop their skills as writers of poetry, prose, and drama. Courses in the fundamentals of these three genres prepare students for the Department's main course offerings: the close study of major works and periods of literature from the British, American, and Canadian traditions, as well as from some other cultures. In addition, the Department offers a variety of special courses in Rhetoric, Language, and special genres such as Satire and Tragedy, as well as courses on special topics such as Book History, Autobiography, and Intertextuality. At the senior level, there are courses concentrating on the life and works of individual authors: these are conducted in small seminar classes which stimulate open and intensive discussion between students and instructor.

A Co-op option, requiring three work terms, is available. Students interested in the Co-operative Education/Internship program should contact the Coordinator of Co-operative Education in the Career Resources Centre (B610 | phone: 403-382-7154) for further information.

Bachelor of Arts English

Program Requirements

The B.A. degree with a major in English requires 40 semester courses, including a minimum of 13 courses in the major. A maximum of 20 courses in English is allowed. English 1900 is the prerequisite for all other English courses at the 2000 level; you should take English 1900 as soon as you begin your program.

Transfer Credit

Remember that you may use both University of Lethbridge credit and credit transferred from another college or university to meet degree and major requirements. Transfer credit may be either specified or unspecified. Specified credit is indicated on your transcript by the subject name and the specific number of the course, e.g., English 1900, 2300, etc. Unspecified credit (1XXX, 2XXX, etc.) is indicated by the subject name and level of the course in parentheses, e.g., English (1000 level), English (2000 level), etc.

Unspecified Course Credit

Unspecified course credit means that the University of Lethbridge does not offer the same course you transferred in, but we recognize it and treat it as a regular course. An unspecified course would count as one of your maximum of 20 from one department, but it could not meet a specific course requirement. For example, if English 2100 is required in your program, you could not use English (2000 level) to fulfill that requirement. ENGL 1XXX can be used as a prerequisite to 2000-level English courses. Students with unspecified transfer credit need to consult an Academic Advisor to establish how the transfer credit fits in the degree program. This should be done as soon as possible after transfer credit is awarded.

GLER course: A course that could count toward the General Liberal Education Requirement. You may use courses in your major towards this 12-course requirement. See the 2010/2011 University of Lethbridge Calendar, Part 4 - Academic Regulations (p. 85) for complete information.

The Faculty of Arts and Science offers Liberal Education 1000 and 2000, specifically designed to introduce first-year students to the wide scope of human knowledge and teach essential university success skills, critical thinking, and integrative thinking (see the 2010/2011 University of Lethbridge Calendar, Part 14 - Courses, p. 306). LBED 1000 and 2000 may be used toward satisfying the GLER.
