Calendar Year: 2012/2013 Faculty: Arts & Science

What is Anthropology?	Anthropology is the academic study of human diversity in local settings. The particulars of any local life, society, or culture, however, are not isolated from global processes and flows. Contemporary anthropology examines the material, social, and cultural conditions of human behaviour and life from this locally global perspective. Anthropological methods, theories, and practice reflect a history of long-term, on-the-ground, face-to-face relations between anthropologists and the diverse peoples of our world. Anthropology is an open-ended disciplinary project continually shaped by the differences and similarities encountered worldwide in the vast array of human experience.
Anthropology is Unique Among the Social Sciences	Long-term ethnographic fieldwork in these local settings is the hallmark of the anthropological approach to the study of the human condition. These lengthy periods of participant observation are accompanied by the analysis of oral, written, or electronic texts. In addition, anthropologists often act as advocates of the people and communities they study, working jointly with them to help them accomplish their goals. Anthropologists try to understand human social and cultural life in the broadest possible terms, and from many diverse points of view. Anthropologists compare such perspectives without delivering judgments upon them, to discover both what people have in common and what makes them different from one another.
Anthropology Courses	Through a wide variety of courses, the Department of Anthropology at the University of Lethbridge provides students with a strong background in the discipline, from history of the discipline to contemporary theory and practice. As an important part of the University's commitment to a liberal education, the program helps students to understand various societies and cultures around the globe. Our first- and second-year courses are intended to introduce the field and general areas of interest within it. Thereafter, students have an opportunity to concentrate more fully on particular topics and areas. Courses are offered on major cultural areas of the world such as North America, South Asia, Southeast Asia, Latin America, and Europe as well as on specific topics such as popular culture, economics, politics, the family, religion, race, the history of anthropological thought, social movements, gender, medicine, applied anthropology, political anthropology, and environment and development.
Possible Career Paths	A Bachelor of Arts in Anthropology can lead to a number of different careers. Our students have achieved an excellent record in post-graduate studies, both in North America and in Europe. The B.A. in Anthropology also supplies a good foundation for professional study in social work, law, education, health, immigrant services, museum management, and development planning. Employment opportunities which make use of a B.A. in Anthropology include work in museums and interpretive sites, international development, marketing, communications, federal government service, and local or regional community support.
Co-operative Education	A Co-op option, requiring three work terms, is available. Students interested in the Co-operative Education/Internship program should contact the Coordinator of Co-operative Education in the Career Resources Centre (AH154 phone: 403-382-7154) for further information.

This is a planning guide and not a graduation check or guarantee of course offerings. You should have a program check done in your final year of studies. Students are responsible for the accuracy of their own programs. The guide should be used in conjunction with the University of Lethbridge Calendar, which is the final authority on all questions regarding program requirements and academic regulations. Contact an Academic Advisor in the Faculty of Arts and Science for advising information. Anthropology

Bachelor of Arts - Anthropology Calendar Year - 2012/2013
Program Requirements	The B.A. degree with a major in Anthropology requires 40 semester courses, including a minimum of 13 courses in the Anthropology major. A maximum of 20 courses in Anthropology is allowed.
Transfer Credit	Remember that you may use both University of Lethbridge credit and credit transferred from another college or university to meet degree and major requirements. Transfer credit may be either specified or unspecified. Specified credit is indicated on your transcript by the subject name and the specific number of the course, e.g., Anthropology 1000, 2510, etc. Unspecified credit (1XXX, 2XXX, etc.) is indicated by the subject name and level of the course in parentheses, e.g., Anthropology (1000 level), Anthropology (2000 level), etc.
Unspecified Course Credit	Unspecified course credit means that the University of Lethbridge does not offer the same course you transferred in, but we recognize it and treat it as a regular course. An unspecified course would count as one of your maximum of 20 from one department, but it could not meet a specific course requirement. For example, if Anthropology 3100 is required in your program, you could not use Anthropology (3000 level) to fulfill that requirement. Students with unspecified transfer credit need to consult an Academic Advisor to establish how the transfer credit fits in the degree program. This should be done as soon as possible after transfer credit is awarded.
Advice From the Department	The Department of Anthropology reminds students of the importance of planning ahead. This is particularly important for courses at the 4000 level. At least one 4000-level course is offered each Fall and Spring semester so students are advised to plan their third and fourth years with this in mind. Consult the Department Chair for information on course offerings.

Terms Used

GLER course: A course that could count toward the General Liberal Education Requirement. You may use courses in your major towards this 12-course requirement. See the 2012/2013 University of Lethbridge Calendar, Part 4 - Academic Regulations (p. 89) for complete information.

The Faculty of Arts and Science offers Liberal Education 1000 and 2000, specifically designed to introduce first-year students to the wide scope of human knowledge and teach essential university success skills, critical thinking, and integrative thinking (see the 2012/2013 University of Lethbridge Calendar, Part 14 -Courses, p. 312). LBED 1000 and 2000 may be used toward satisfying the GLER.

Elective: A course that you may choose freely from all those available and applicable to your program. Use courses inside or outside your major, bearing in mind any restrictions that may apply (e.g., a maximum of 20 courses from any one department).
